7070 SANTA MONICA BLVD | WEST HOLLYWOOD

CARPENTERSWORKSHOP GALLERY

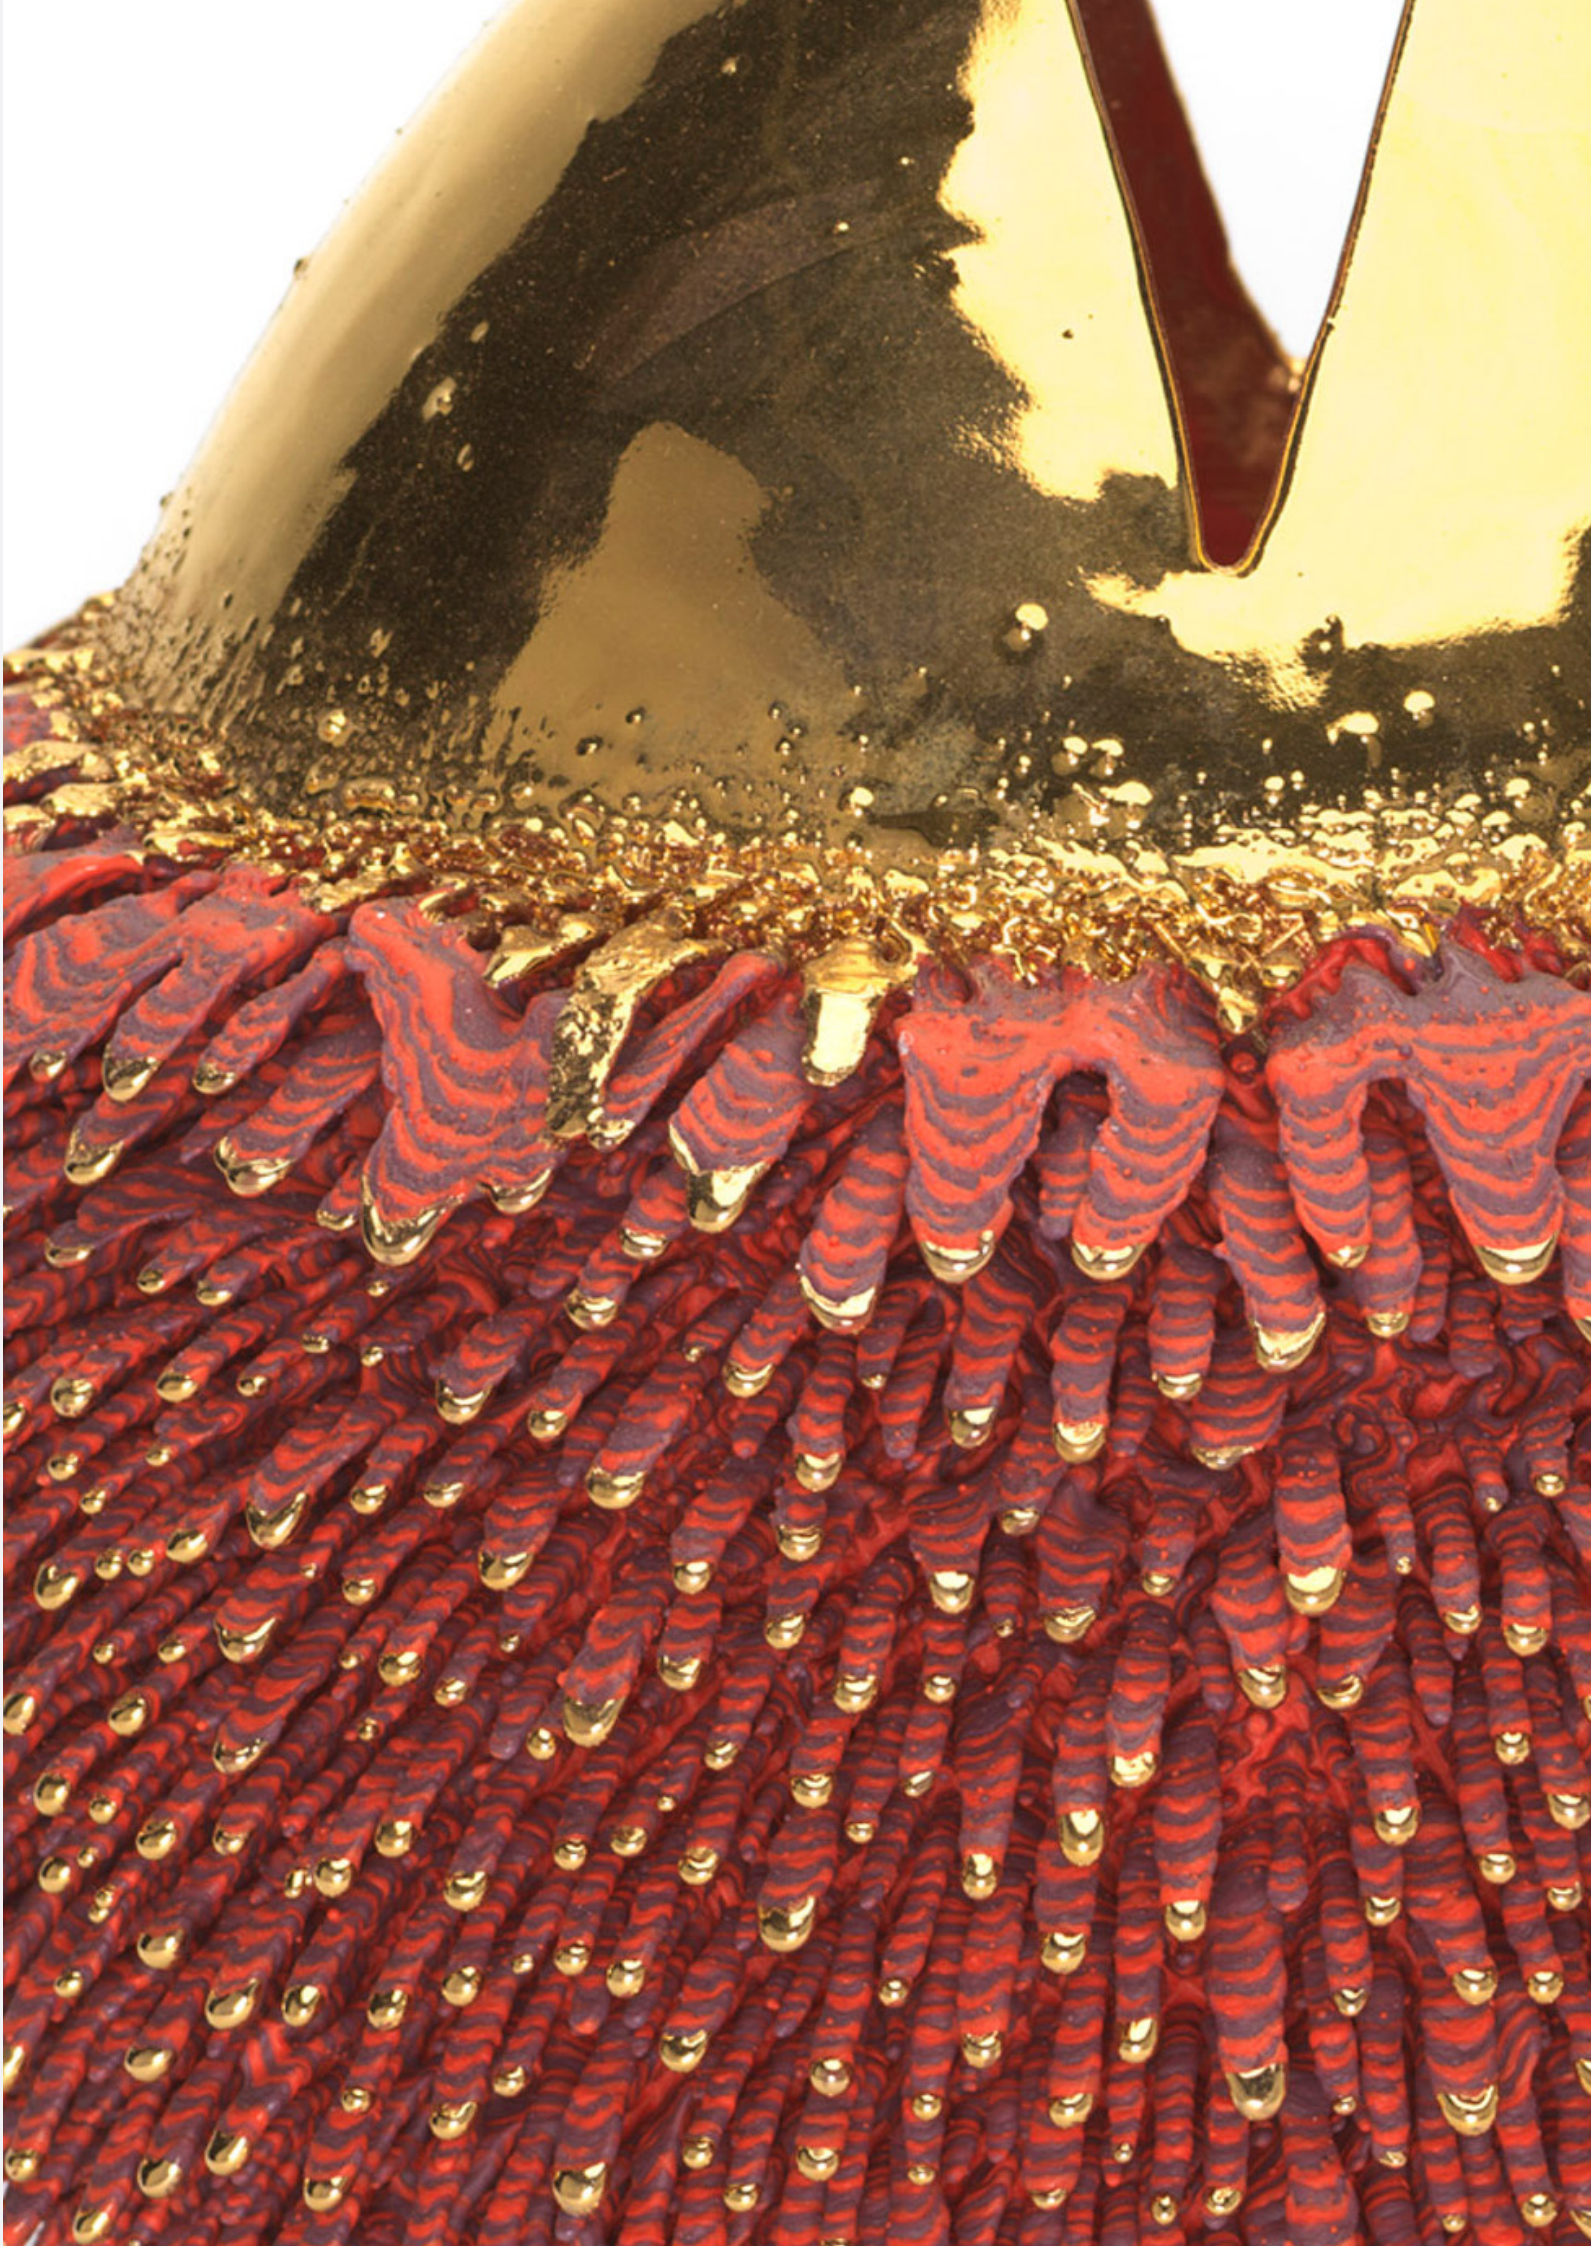

Haas Brothers, founded in 2010 by twins Nikolai and Simon Haas, first came to prominence with functional furniture design and home décor, and has since expanded its practice into the realm of architecture, fine art, and digital creations. Whether it's a bulbous creature, fuzzy character or ceramic form that resembles an alien, each piece is distinctively playful and straddles the line between humor and art, crafted with organic forms, intricate detailing, and materials such as bronze, fur, and glass.

Imbuing everyday objects with a sense of play and fantasy, the brothers' work often navigates themes of nature, science fiction, sexuality, and psychedelia. Perhaps their most prominent theme is the organic world. Many of their sculptures and designs are inspired by natural forms such as plants, animals, and geological formations, and they frequently incorporate elements like tentacles, scales, and horns into their creations, resulting in pieces that feel both familiar and otherworldly – like an alien plucked from a science-fiction film. The pair are also known for their inclusive approach to representation, creating sculptures and characters that challenge conventional beauty standards and celebrate diversity in all its forms.

Despite their dystopian aesthetic, their work still retains a high level of artistry. Working with a mix of materials, they often use bronze and fur to achieve a sense of warmth, both of which are adopted to evoke themes of play and vibrancy. Glass is another material frequently applied to their artworks, and they tend to work with glassblowers to create custom components lavished in color. Additionally, the pair like to use resin and clay, which allows them to apply colorful and translucent finishes, and construct unusual compositions through hand-building, wheel-throwing, and glazing.

Haas Brothers' series of Accretion vases exemplifies their ability for pushing the limits of their chosen materials, especially clay. Each vessel, crafted by hand and incorporating a medley of ceramic techniques, mimics the delicate growth processes found in nature. The result is a collection of mesmerizing textures appearing like petals, or coral sprouting from the seabed.
